

I am a former professional rugby player now based between North America and France who turned into an entrepreneur with a thousand projects, passionate about sport, the media and transmission.

As a producer, lecturer, teacher, columnist and strategy consultant, my aim is to show that it is possible to do things that have never been done before.

Dynamic and committed, I manage my projects with the same boldness that led me to become the creator and producer of the documentary project "La Transition".

I am an entrepreneur with a thousand projects and I want to inspire a community that, like me, will take up the challenge of redefining the word possible. Through my actions in the sports, media or academic fields, I characterize myself as a real agent of change and I aspire to have an impact.

I am an ideator passionate about entrepreneurship.

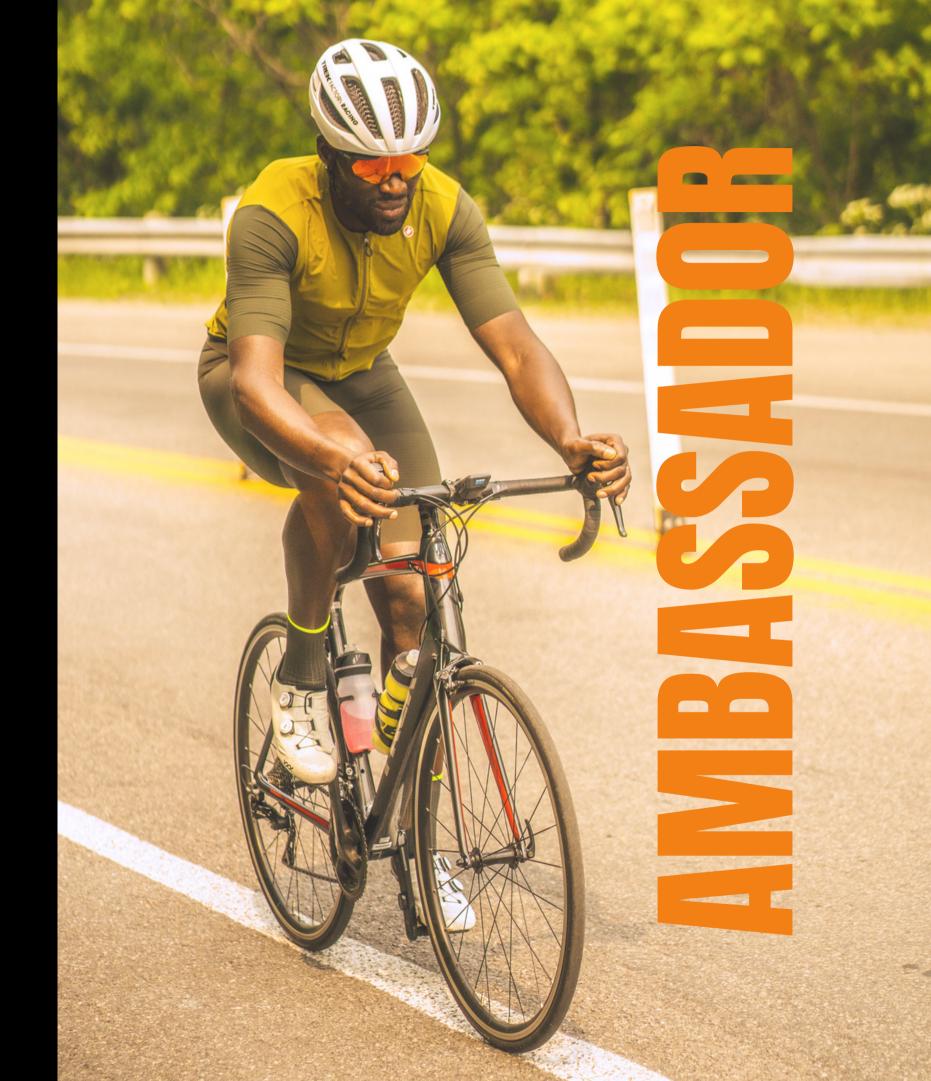

Proud ambassador of iconic brands
Trek and Castelli, my role is inclusive.

I want to embody the values of sharing and surpassing oneself.
